

The Peanut Gallery

(Paul Hogan & Jeff Wortman)

Comic Performers/Broadcasters/Writers

1. Peanut Gallery - (noun; figurative) people whose criticisms are regarded as irrelevant or insignificant (resembling uneducated people who throw peanuts on the stage to express displeasure with a performance)

2. Peanut Gallery - Jeff and Paul
Best mates Jeff Wortman and Paul Hogan team up in The Peanut Gallery. It's a bit of comedy, a bit of sport and lots of fun, and can currently be heard on Triple M Nationally Monday to Thursday from 7pm - 9pm and also host the 'Best of Barry' 10pm Thursdays.

Jeff and Paul met while studying Creative Arts at Uni. Paul dropped out after 6 months and Jeff went on to graduate with honours. They both ended up in the Peanut Gallery on Triple M (though Paul saved himself a few thousand dollars in University fees).

They also produce regular videos for Herald Sun Online which has become very popular with footy fans.

They have interviewed Chris Isaak, Rob Schneider, Carson Cressley, sung 'Jesse's Girl' with Totti Goldsmith, had singing lessons with Jimmy Barnes, done office pranks with Eddie McGuire and even taken a speckie over Jon Bon Jovi.

And with their many and varied talents in sketches and creating hilarious song parodies on current entertainment affairs and sporting controversies, the Peanut Gallery guys are sure to take you along on their comedic musical journey.

The Peanut Gallery boys are definitely making their name in the comedy arena so listen to them on Triple M and see them on the Herald Sun website! You can't miss them!

Paul and Jeff are experienced in MCing and performance at corporate functions.

For more info about the boys and to see some footage of their antics, go to their Triple M page, their Herald Sun page to their Facebook page or to their You Tube page.
